About Being Resolved

Mike King

We have arrived at one of the most exciting times of the year, the completion of an old year and the beginning of a new one. This always provides us with a time of reflection and anticipation. The discerning Christian will always be anticipating additional opportunities for growth and self improvement.

The book of James records some powerful words that should arouse our interests and inspire us toward greater service. He said, “Therefore, to one who knows the right thing to do, and does not do it, to him it is sin” (Jas. 4:17). The growth-conscious Christian will seek knowledge of what good is and will pursue the doing of it as well. It is one thing to know what good is and to simply keep as information and to allow that information to become a driving force in our lives. One little boy by the name of Cole was getting into the spirit of New Year’s Resolutions. He suggested that putting away toys “is a good idea because you don’t want to step on something sharp.” He further thinks that it is important to wash your hands “because you don’t want to spread germs.” When one reporter from the Southern Illinoisan asked him “if he’d commit to the resolution himself,” he changed the subject.

It is so much easier to envision good resolutions and an ideal life-style than to make them. It is even more difficult to perform them. Little Cole had the right vision and knew what the right thing to do was, but struggled with personalizing it and making it relative to his life. We all struggle more with the performance of a duty than being aware that it needs to be done.

Dr. James L. Wilson recommends four goals in terms of making and meeting resolutions that could prove to be helpful. He suggests that first of all, choose the right New Year resolutions, some that are practical and within reach. Secondly, create a plan for the accomplishment of stated goal. Thirdly, stay on track in chipping away at meeting the goals, avoiding distractions and discouragements. Fourthly, remain flexible and keep on going. The decision to act does not insure success. Dr. Wilson states additionally, “The decision to act does not insure success. Think of it like this, if there is more to doing right than knowing the right thing to do, then there is also more to it than deciding to do the right.

Let us put our hand to the plough in living for the Lord in 2011, refusing to look back and grieve over past failures.
